"Application made for entry as second-class matter, January 25, 1925, at the post office at Lancaster, Pennsylvania, under the Act of August, 1912."
Franklin and Marshall College took a forward stride in its march of progress toward greater service on December 12, last year, when the cornerstones of the two new dormitories were laid by B. F. Fackenthal, Jr., President of the Board of Trustees, and William H. Hager, Chairman of the Building Committee. After a short service in the college chapel conducted by President Apple, who briefly outlined the ideals of Franklin and Marshall and what he hoped would come from this equipment-doubling step, Trustees, Faculty and Student Body filed into the quad-

A CALL TO SERVICE
President Henry H. Apple, D.D., LL.D.

One of the most significant features in connection with the problem of modern education is the vital interest alumni and former students are manifesting in their own colleges and universities and the substantial support given by them for their growth and development. Practically every institution in the country is being encouraged and strengthened by the love and loyalty of those who received their academic training and nurture within the hallowed walls and by the sacred associations of their Alma Mater. While this devotion was shown in former time at intervals and by individual initiative and personal selection, it is now being revealed in united effort and more intelligent direction.

The rapid growth of Franklin and Marshall College in the last few years, which has greatly enlarged her needs and widened her sphere of activity, has touched the hearts of her sons and led them to inaugurate an appeal for funds to enable the college to meet the demands made upon her and to render more efficient service.

Last December representatives and officers of the various Alumni Associations were called together to be informed of the scope and purpose of the Board of Trustees in the program of building operations and to consider the best way in which their co-operation might be expressed. There was indicated unanimous approval both of the administration of the college and the plan of future development. After a careful consideration of the entire problem it was decided that the plan should be enlarged and that an Executive Committee should be created to investigate the possibility of securing a larger budget and extending the scope of operations for material equipment. In due time the Executive Committee acted favorably upon the suggestion and determined to increase the budget in order that additional needs might be met.

In accord with this purpose an organization is being effected for an intensive campaign to culminate in September, 1925. In a general way units will be organized where there are groups of alumni and provision made to reach those more widely scattered. At meetings arranged in various centers, and by literature, definite information will be given in reference to the items for which money is needed and the manner in which contributions are to be made. It is necessary that all phases of the effort be correlated in time and activity to secure the cumulative effect of united co-operation and that the plan be followed in detail as outlined and directed by the Executive Committee.

It is a matter of sincere gratification and genuine inspiration that the impulse for the campaign arises out of the real growth and success of the college. The needs are due to the growth of life. It follows a period of expansion and internal development running back through at least twenty-five years. Those who are familiar with the administration of Dr. John S. Stahr as President of the College will realize how fortunate it was that he put into the duties and privileges of his office the brilliant scholarship of both a philosopher and scientist. It was his brain and heart that successfully guided the strong classical and philosophical course and guarded the precious interests of liberal education when there was recognized and place given to the scientific and democratic forces at work in life and which served to enrich a modern curriculum. He met and satisfied our confidence by safely conserving the best of the old and providing for the best of the new.

Every son of Franklin and Marshall College owes a debt of gratitude to Dr. Stahr, which he can never repay, for his personal influence upon and his untiring efforts for the college in a time of educational uncertainty and his service in preserving the solidarity of our educational heritage. Upon his retirement from office in 1909 there was need of further internal development to complete his purpose for the college. This was done in the provision for a more adequate pre-medical course, a better training for those preparing to teach, and in the subsequent departments of Business Administration and of Religion. The Executive force was strengthened by the addition of the office of Dean and the office of Secretary. It was also necessary to secure a larger endowment and in the last decade $560,000 was secured for that purpose—making the endowment now nearly $800,000.

While the Alumni have always contributed to the college and many had part in raising the endowment, there has never been a concerted action such as is now contemplated in their own financial campaign. Nor was there ever the need of financial support as now in the demand for more buildings and equipment. The recent increase of the student body to five hundred and the faculty to thirty emphasizes the requirement of a larger material plant. For many years the college was visualized in three buildings—the main building and the two society halls. They were adequate for that day even though they housed the Theological Seminary as well as the College. Better service was rendered when the gymnasium, library and science building were erected.

Conditions today make it absolutely necessary to have the dormitories, auditorium, new gymnasium and central heating plant which are in course.

In the group, from left to right are: Rear row—Rev. Robert J. Pilgram, Lancaster, secretary of the college; T. G. Helm, Lancaster; Dr. H. H. Apple, president of F. and M.; Rev. David Scheirer, Willow Street; E. C. Wingerd, Chambersburg; P. C. Wagner, Esq., Philadelphia; W. A. Schnader, Esq., Philadelphia; Dr. T. B. Appel, Lancaster, chairman of the Board of Governors of the college; Judge Paul N. Schaeffer, Reading; F. Lyman Windolph, Esq., Lancaster; Prof. J. Nevin Schaeffer, Lancaster; J. Franklin Meyer, Ph.D., Washington, D.C., and M. M. Harnish, Esq., Lancaster.

Front row—Dr. John E. Livingood, Reading; Prof. J. C. Werner, Pittsburgh; J. A. Rieser, Esq., Reading; Prof. Richard C. Madison, Altoona; A. L. Lightner, New York City; J. D. Kocher, Allentown; W. A. Wert, Allentown, and C. N. Wenrich, Ph.D., Lancaster.
An organized movement to raise $500,000 as a building expansion fund for Franklin and Marshall College has been launched from Lancaster, and is being extended week by week throughout the United States. This fund is to be obtained from and through the alumni. It is hoped that most of it will come from graduates and other former students, but it is expected that a goodly part will be contributed by friends of higher education with whom the alumni have personal contact.

The money will be used to erect the two new dormitories, Hensel Auditorium and a central heating plant; to build a new gymnasium in place of the present inadequate structure; to move the observatory to a more suitable part of the campus, and for other construction included in President Apple's expansion plan.

All the several branches of this new activity in behalf of Franklin and Marshall head up in the Rev. Robert J. Pilgram, '98, secretary of the college. Mr. Pilgram now occupies a room on the main floor of the Science Building which he has fitted up as campaign headquarters. In this office he is rapidly bringing up to date a complete roster of all former students, as well as a roll of the alumni associations in various cities and a list of centers in which such organizations should be formed. All this valuable information is card-indexed so as to be ready for rapid use in the important undertaking.

The half-million-dollar alumni campaign is the result of a series of conferences among delegates from alumni associations and representatives of unorganized centers held at the Hotel Brunswick in Lancaster in December last. At the final meeting of those conferees, an executive committee representative of the whole alumni body was chosen, as follows:

Executive Committee

William A. Schnader, '08
Deputy Attorney-General of Pa, Philadelphia, Chairman

A. Leroy Lightner, '04
New York

John E. Livingood, M.D., '09

J. Franklin Meyer, Ph.D., '94
Bureau of Standards, Washington, D.C.

Henry A. Reninger, '06

Samuel H. Banck, '92
Grand Rapids Free Library
Grand Rapids, Mich.

Calvin N. Wenrich, Ph.D., '02

President, Franklin and Marshall College

Thaddeus G. Helm, '95
Pennsylvania Casualty Company
Pres. Gen. Alumni Association

The Rev. Robert J. Pilgram, '98
Secretary of the College, Lancaster

Cooperating with the foregoing central group will be local chairmen and team leaders in every place where Franklin and Marshall alumni dwell. The fund will be obtained by volunteer workers among the alumni, who will be grouped, trained and inspired by Secretary Pilgram and his field organizer. The size of the local committee and the number of volunteer teams in each center will hinge on the population of the city and the number of graduates and other former students living there. In some towns, there will be only a committee; in others, Mr. Pilgram and his coadjutor will organize not only local committees but also teams and auxiliary units.
The college secretary has established in campaign headquarters a publicity department which plans to spread the story of Franklin and Marshall over the civilized world. News stories, special articles, editorials and pictures are to be sent throughout this and other continents. Thousands of letters relating to the campaign will be mailed. Speakers will be sent to as many parts of the field as may be practicable, and a widespread educational campaign of oral publicity will enlist the cooperation of undergraduates as well as the aid of men who have obtained their degrees and are extending the Franklin and Marshall spirit in the outside world.

The Rev. Henry H. Apple, D.D., LL.D., president of the college, and all the other members of the faculty are solidly behind Secretary Pilgram and the alumni executive committee for every stage of the enterprise. Dr. Apple and his colleagues will not only make addresses to former students and other friends of the college at pivotal points, but they will also give generously of their ability as writers to forward the program of the publicity department.

The alumni campaign is to end on September 20 of this year. It is hoped that by that time the fund will be oversubscribed, as the half-million dollar objective is the irreducible minimum compatible with completion of the building expansion plan.

LEHIGH VALLEY ALUMNI DINNER

About seventy members and their wives attended the annual meeting and dinner of the Lehigh Valley Alumni Association of Franklin and Marshall College, held on Friday evening, January 30, at the Hotel Allen, Allentown, Pa. NEW YORK ALUMNI

Annual meeting, Friday, April 17, New York City.
Prof. and Mrs. Charles E. Meyers have recovered sufficiently from the automobile accident of last October to return to their home from the General Hospital. They are able to be about, but Prof. Meyers cannot yet take up his full schedule of work.

Prof. Herbert H. Beck, of the College Faculty, was recently re-elected the President of the Lancaster County Historical Society, which moved into its new home, 307 North Duke Street, Lancaster, in November, 1924. Charles A. Sauber, treasurer of Franklin and Marshall College, is a member of the Board of Directors of the Historical Society. Prof. and Mrs. Beek are spending the month of February at Delray, Florida, where Prof. Beek hopes to recuperate fully from the automobile accident of last October.

Dean Howard R. Omwake has recently been elected Vice-President of the College and University Round Table of the Pennsylvania State Education Association. Prof. J. Nevin Schaeffer is the secretary of this organization.

Dr. H. M. J. Klein, professor of History in the faculty, has been appointed Chairman of the City Planning Commission of Lancaster, Pa., recently created by the City Councils to provide ideas and plans for the present and future growth of the city in orderliness and beauty. Two other alumni serving on this commission are F. Lyman Windolph, '08, Esq., and Robert L. Gerhart, '05. Dr. Klein made the address at the annual dinner of the Lancaster County Society, held in Pittsburgh, January 31.

Prof. H. R. Barnes, Vice-President of the Phi Sigma Kappa Fraternity, attended the 25th biennial convention in the Hotel Statler, Detroit, Mich., Nov. 20-22, 1924.

Prof. H. R. Barnes reports that permission has been granted by the Pa. State Department of Public Instruction to give the graduates of F. & M. holding the degree B.S. in Economics standard certificates to teach commercial subjects in the High Schools of Pa., providing they take business administration as a major course and satisfy the eighteen-hour requirement in department of education.

Arrangements have been made by the Lancaster Advertisers Club whereby the students of F. & M. may secure associate membership in the club and a number of the students have availed themselves of this privilege. This gives them the opportunity of hearing some of the best speakers in the country on merchandising topics, and of meeting business men of the city. Prof. H. R. Barnes is the chairman of the Educational Committee and a member of the Board of Directors of the Lancaster Advertisers Club. He is also Vice-President of the Lancaster County Council, B. S. of A.

Professor J. N. Schaeffer, as chairman of the Superintending Committee of the Lancaster City Board of Education, recently reported to the Board on the survey of the school system made at his suggestion last spring by Professor Paul H. Hanus and other specialists from the Graduate School of Education of Harvard University. During the past year the Board has made a number of changes in the school system. On the basis of the findings and recommendations of the survey staff they will no doubt plan a gradual program of other changes. Professor Schaeffer has been Vice-President of the Board since he became a member in December, 1923.

Dr. Paul N. Landis and Dr. Sivert N. Hagen, of the English Department, and Dr. P. W. Harry, of the Modern Language Department, attended the annual meeting of the Modern Language Association of America, held at Columbia University, N. Y., December 29–31, 1924.

A. V. Polack, Jr., 1926, of York, Pa., who has been varsity pitcher for the first two years has been elected captain of the baseball team. He has been the mainstay in the box and a dependable player.

of erection. The Committee of Alumni deems it equally important to enlarge the program so as to include additional laboratories, the remodeling of the old gymnasium, the extension of the heating system to all buildings, larger working space in the library and additional recitation rooms, as well as a greater endowment to cover the added expense of maintenance of this new equipment.

It is intended and expected that the campaign will reach beyond the Alumni and former students. Fortunately many others have been brought into a sympathetic relation with the college through the devotion and enthusiasm of our alumni and undoubtedly we will derive much support from them. To them, sons of the college will be special ambassadors. Our enthusiasm and efforts will be communicated to our many friends who will be invited and will cheerfully contribute to the college in which they are already interested and for whose welfare they are deeply concerned. There never was a time when the place and importance of the denominational college was so clearly recognized as now, nor was her appeal for assistance ever as significant or insistent as in the conditions and circumstances of today which so clearly need the forces of Christian education.

This is a great work set before us. It is worthy of the best traditions of the college and the devoted loyalty of the Alumni to the institution which so richly blessed us in her service in helping to make us what we are and fitting us for a useful ministry in life. Graduates and former students number about three thousand. Throughout this body of men there runs the single, strong, cohesive spirit equal to the emergency which now confronts our Alma Mater. We will find joy in paying our debt to the college we love and we are assured we can carry to a successful conclusion the work upon which we have entered. We, the Alumni of this generation, will do our part in making the college what she ought to be.
ATHLETES WIN SWEATERS

The annual award of monogram sweaters with sport service stripes was made to eighteen members of the varsity football squad of Franklin and Marshall on Thursday morning by C. Paul Myers, supervising manager of athletics. Coach Charles W. Mayser, Asst. Coach H. D. Weller, Second Asst. Coach L. R. Berger, Manager G. S. Ruth, Asst. Manager W. R. Stockton, Trainer Joseph McGeever were also given sweaters and eighteen members of the second team were awarded jerseys with "second" monogram. Members of the varsity presented Captain John E. Geesey with a silver pen knife and Coach Mayser with a wallet. In connection with the presentation a strong address was made by President H. H. Apple, on "Fitting Athletics into Life," in which he emphasized the spirit of fight, the will to win, team work and training. The captain and coaches also made suitable acknowledgment.

ON THE COURT

With nine games scheduled for February, Coach Weller's Franklin and Marshall College basketeers expect a busy month. The following games remain to be played:

Tuesday, Feb. 17—Lebanon Valley, at Lancaster.
Saturday, Feb. 21—Gettysburg, at Gettysburg.
Wednesday, Feb. 25—Albright, at Lancaster.

Franklin and Marshall has won one more game than it has lost, having beaten Moravian, State Forestry, Trinity, Drexel (2), U. of P. Junior Varsity, U. of Delaware, Swarthmore, and having lost to Wesleyan, Brooklyn Poly., Stevens Tech, Lebanon Valley, Muhlenberg, Gettysburg and Haverford.

GRAPPLERS

The Franklin and Marshall wrestling team, which sport is only in its second year at the College, is progressing very favorably under the leadership of Coach Chas. W. Mayser, head football coach, who as instructor of wrestling at Iowa State University, several years ago, developed some of the best grapplers in the middle west conference. Mayser's matmen have thus far been awarded overwhelming triumphs over Stevens Tech., of Hoboken, N. J.; Muhlenberg College and Western Maryland, all institutions in F. and M.'s own class.

The only setback for the F. & M. wrestlers occurred last week against the undefeated championship University of Pennsylvania team. The Blue and White men, however, gave a good account of their prowess in all the matches, and forced Penn to greater exertion than it took for the Quakers to overcome the strong Princeton outfit two weeks before. Several meets remain to complete the wrestling schedule, including an engagement with Washington and Lee University.

ALTOONA ALUMNI

Annual meeting, May 1, Altoona, Pa.

The latter, who has returned to college for the second semester, will probably not be able to play his old position at first base on account of his injury last summer. A number of other men will likely compete for positions:

WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA ALUMNI
Annual meeting, Friday, April 24, Pittsburgh, Pa.
The Fourth R is radio.

Wonderful and marvelous, you say—as a crowning glory to this great age of discovery, of thinking God’s thoughts after Him!

It may well be taken as a synonym of advancement, of progress.

And the possibilities of this miraculous period of achievement are limitless.

As a theme suggestive of progress, may we not turn the searchlight upon ourselves—we of F. & M.—ascertain just how we may best keep pace with modern progress and “tune in” to the onward march discernible on every side.

The time has passed when we could have a college or university wherever an instructor sat upon a log with a pupil at his side.

Education as exemplified in the college has become little less than a big business enterprise—great capital, large endowments, many instructors, many buildings and more buildings.

Organization, cooperation, efficiency—these terms that are keynotes of the magnificent business enterprises of America—are none the less keynotes of the successful progress of colleges, of our colleges.

The example from Alice-in-Wonderland is apropos; we go just as fast and as hard as we can and then find, in looking about, that we have only stood still; we must redouble our efforts to get ahead.

Much we have to be thankful for in the progress of F. & M. in the past decade—certainly we have more than stood still.

But we have only started—like the fourth R, the possibilities that lie ahead are vast—we need more modern business methods, more intensively applied, and more and greater cooperation, both in administrative and executive functioning and with the Alumni.

Let us not forget the principles of success and progress that dominate our day, and let us take advantage of every one—closer organization and better teamwork for realizing the dreams that may only thus come true.

What the fourth R typifies let us do and be.

It is up to you—LEND A HAND.

ATTENTION, CLASS SECRETARIES!

Class reunions are being arranged for Commencement-time. Class officers have been making inquiries of the Secretary about addresses of their classmates. The “Alumnus” office is prepared to send corrected lists of alumni to enable officers and committees to round up their classes.
It's time to begin planning for these reunions. Make an early start. Several letters will be necessary to inspire the men with the old spirit and line them up for the event. Let the Secretary’s office help you in this.

The change in Commencement to the week-end, with Alumni Day on Saturday, June 6th, should bring out a larger number of alumni than ever before. This is our big year, the year of our Alumni Campaign. We will have an outpouring of alumni spirit such as the old College has not known since the Jubilee of 1903.

THE FACULTY AND THE COMMUNITY

You will note on another page the relationship of members of the Faculty to community interests and activities. Theirs is not a cloistered life, "far from the madding crowd." They are in touch with men and events. They carry the leaven of academic culture in many contacts.

The College is set on a hill, but her professors take their vision to the surrounding town, and seek to cooperate with their fellow-townsmen in forms of helpful service. This is good for the institution as well as for the community.

Franklin and Marshall has closer touch with the city of its location than most colleges. It is glad and proud to lend helpful influence in light and learning for the common good.

AN OLDER ALUMNUS
Since the November issue of the Franklin and Marshall Alumnus, in which the Rev. Walter E. Krebs, D.D., was referred to as the oldest known living alumnus of F. and M., an older alumnus has been found. He is Emanuel James Bonbrake, Class of 1855, probably one of the oldest living alumni of any institution.

Mr. Bonbrake’s connection with F. and M. antedates the union of the two colleges by three years, he having entered Marshall College, at Mercersburg, Pa., in 1850. When the colleges united, he continued his studies at Franklin and Marshall, and was a member of the second class to be graduated from the newly merged institution.

As a member of the Diagnothian Literary Society, Mr. Bonbrake in his junior year delivered an oration, “The Wane of the Crescent,” which was said to be the finest ever delivered at the college, and which was considered one of the outstanding Diagnothian triumphs for years. With this success as a background, Mr. Bonbrake was chosen valedictorian of his class.

After his graduation from Franklin and Marshall, he read law under the Hon. John Cessna, who was at that time a member of the Board of Trustees. He was admitted to the bar in 1858 and started his practice in Bedford, Pa., a year later moving to Chambersburg, where he practised continuously until a few years ago. His health broke soon after he left college and he was forced to abandon his public speaking and to confine his practice to the Orphans’ Court and office counselor.

Emanuel James Bonbrake has been successful in business, and has always taken a lively interest in higher education. His own education was not lightly won, for prior to his matriculation at Marshall College and after his graduation from public school, he taught in the township schools to make enough money to continue his studies in college. Mr. Bonbrake’s early struggles have made him a strong advocate of college education and for more than half a century he has been a member of the Board of Regents of old Mercersburg College and Mercersburg Academy.

In addition to his law business and educational work, Mr. Bonbrake has continued the research habits which he formed in school and college. His collection of specimens of nearly every tree and shrub growing in Franklin County, Penna., is rated one of the finest of its kind in the United States.
At his home in Chambersburg, one may see his carefully catalogued specimens which are highly polished to display the natural grain of the wood as well as the bark of the tree. As a further feature of Mr. Bonbrake's arborial museum, he has been at great pains to procure a descriptive line or stanza of every tree, which he has found in English or American verse writings or, in many instances, in original verse.

Mr. Bonbrake, the youngest child of John and Susanna Bonbrake, was born January 3, 1832, near Waynesboro, Franklin Co., Pa., and is therefore ninety-three years of age. In 1861 he married E. Belle Oaks and to them four children were born:
Carrie, the eldest, who died in childhood; Jessie, the widow of Dr. P.
Brough Montgomery, of Chambersburg; Lillian, the widow of J. Ross
Snively, of Pittsburgh; and Norman L., who is junior member of the firm of Bonbrake and Zacharias, Chambersburg, and at present State Senator from the 33rd District of Pennsylvania.

ELMER RHODES HOKE, PH.D., '13
A NOTABLE BIRTHDAY

The Rev. A. E. Truxal, D.D., ’69, one of Franklin and Marshall’s oldest alumni, celebrated his eightieth birthday on October 30, when his son, Captain W. Curtis Truxal, ’04, held a dinner in his honor at the Somerset Country Club, Somerset, Pa., at which several graduates of Franklin and Marshall were present.

F. W. Biesecker, ’80, Vice-President of the Board of Trustees, was one of several speakers. Mr. Biesecker said that Dr. Truxal was worthy of a crown, and he highly praised Dr. Truxal’s ministerial work and his religious writings. Excerpts from Mr. Biesecker’s speech follow:

"WORTHY OF A CROWN"

"Some years ago there was a group of ministers of the Reformed Church in Somerset Classis, the like of which we may not see again. The individuals composing this group were strong, physically and mentally. They brought to their calling highly trained minds and a strong religious spirit.

"These men built better than they knew and many of them did not live to see the fruits of their great labor, the magnificent structure they created. Day in and day out they devoted their time and talents and their all to the Church of their choice.

"The result was and has been a response from the brethren in the way of financial support for the various institutions of the church. The large contributions from this Classis can be accounted for only as an answer to the inspiration created by these heroes of the church. The Christian endeavor, devotion and sacrifice once aroused was communicated from one to the other.

"Some of these contributors had never seen the objects of their bounty. In their contributions and the number of them, Somerset Classis probably exceeds that of any other Classis in the Church. This not because of the abundance and wealth of the donors, for their possessions for the most part were limited, but because of a Christian spirit of devotion and sacrifice that had been taught by their pastors by word and example.

"Dr. Truxal, whose birthday we celebrate, was an important member of this group, one who could not be spared. He was a leader, always in the fore and a notable figure among these noble pastors.

Other guests at the dinner were: The Rev. George L. Roth, ’08; Dr. Hiram King, Judge F. J. Kooser, Joseph Levy, Prof. W. H. Kretchman, ’01; Prof. A. B. Grof, Captain C. J. Harrison, W. D. Habel and members of Dr. Truxal’s family.

Dr. Truxal is now a resident of Somerset, Penna., having retired from the active ministry after a long pastorate in Amity Reformed Church, Myersdale, Pa. [Editor’s note: We are indebted to George L. Roth, ’08, and the ‘Somerset Classis Visitor,’ for the foregoing article.]

COMMUNICATIONS

"The Franklin and Marshall Alumnus" desires to stimulate an expression and interchange of ideas and comments of the alumni on questions and subjects which may interest them in our common work. Make this a forum to reflect alumni sentiment. Signed letters will be published subject to the usual publication rules, and as space permits.

Dear Mr. Editor:

Since "The Alumnus" has appeared to wake up the alumni to the needs and prospects of old Franklin and Marshall, a good many of us have been set to thinking. And one of our thoughts has been, and is, that the enthusiasm which is being aroused for a greater F. & M. must not permit us to lose sight of the fact that "greater" has not only a quantitative but also a qualitative meaning.

We want a Franklin and Marshall which is not only bigger but at the same time a better college than it ever has been. Greater must mean bigger and better. The two must go together, hand in hand. We want more buildings and fuller equipment. That is what we are striving for. But unless we also aim at higher standards of education all the buildings and equipment will be but a waste of money and effort. They are not an end in itself, but only a means toward the great and all-important end, which is better education.

Franklin and Marshall has done nobly. It has furnished its students as good an education as was possible with its limited equipment. Now we want a better equipment in order that it may give a broader culture and more thorough training in all branches of human knowledge. That is the end to be kept in view, the end towards which we are going to work: a bigger and a better college, a Greater F. & M. We can have it. We must have it. It is up to the alumni to say whether we shall have it or not.

Sincerely yours,

AN ALUMNUS, '87.

Dear Mr. Editor:

I wish to acknowledge your kind favor of Nov. 24th and will be much pleased to receive the "Alumnus."

It seems to me that during the time I was a student at F. & M. there was in attendance the largest percentage of men who have become prominent in their work since graduating. The first football team could not possibly be equalled for the record which it made. It seems to have been the renaissance of the College, and although the course was still the classical of the "Dark Ages" the graduates strove individually for other knowledge than that which could be acquired by its curriculum.

Thus we have Dr. J. K. Small, now a distinguished botanist; Nat Thurlow, an original investigation chemist; Heller, another botanist; Hillegas and Joe Apple, writers, the latter a commercial writer; Harry Apple, our College president, and A. O. Reiter and D. G. Glass, types of distinguished ministers of the Gospel; Dr. Theodore B. Apple and John L. Atlee, surgeons; jurists represented by Wm. M. Keller; educators by Rothermel and Robb. While Irvine was not in the College, he was one of us, as the "Seminoles" were in those days, a personality and educator par excellence. On the football field we had a Lobach, Harold, Line, Griffith, Gabriel and Nothstein, besides the peerless captain and organizer, Irvine. It is a record that the latter students of the College should have held up to them to emulate. Doubtless there were others, but these at least I knew. It is too bad that greatness is not contagious or I might have been in a measure infected and made some larger contribution to human knowledge or in service to mankind.

With best wishes for the future of my Alma Mater and another series of classes like those of '90-'93.

Sincerely,

Spokane, Wash. JOHN H. EBY, '91.

October 4, 1924.

Dear Dr. Apple:

Mrs. Rupp and I are sailing at present between Rangoon and Singapore. We sailed from Calcutta last Sunday morning. At Singapore we wish to board the S. S. Maliva for Shanghai, where we expect to arrive on the 21st of October.

We had some news from home through letters from friends and tried to keep in touch with the chief events through daily papers and through American magazines. I read in the Messenger, while at Bagdad, of the fine commencement at F. and M., and of the ground breaking for the new buildings. I am happy to feel that I also can share in a small way in this progressive move.

When we arrive home we will have a story to tell. I hope I may be able to address your student body in the new chapel. I always lead a strenuous life, but this trip has often taxed me and my wife to the limit of our physical ability. In Mesopotamia the temperature was a number of times 130 Fahrenheit. This was not so oppressive on account of the dryness as in India, where it is very humid and where the temperature was never below 88° and rose to 100°.

Hoping to be home next spring and wishing you great success in your college work, I remain,

Sincerely yours,

JACOB G. RUPP.
